Re: iOS Developer

Dear Hiring Manager:

I am applying for iOS Developer Intern position at Zortech Solutions that was posted on LinkedIn. Zortech Solutions is a large company that is expanding, operating in US, India and Canada, and I want to be part of such large company. As someone who is passionate about iOS Development, the opportunity which is offered here is something I can't ignore.

I am currently working on completing Mobile Application Development Postgraduate Degree at George Brown College while also having a Bachelor of Computer Science from Ryerson University. While in University working on Mobile Application, good communication skills were a must where numerous group members had to work together, and this allowed me to develop my own communication skills when it comes to relaying information to group members who might not be as technically savvy. I have also published my own mobile application and continued to support it for many years thus allowing me to continue to improve and test my skills, thus allowing the creation of the more optimized application. At same time, the continued development created new bugs which allowed me to practice my problem-solving skills since each new bug brought great challenges and better understanding overall.

Thank you for taking the time to read this. Looking forward to hearing from you and discussing any information you wish me to provide. I can be reached at (647) 855-7473 and at andrei.jeltyi@gmail.com. We can discuss when the best time is to arrange an interview.

Sincerely,

Andrei Jeltyi
